They are coming-count 'em-coming, and the Salt Lake hotel folks expect them by the first of next month. Because Utah isn't going to have the fight within its limits. But, of course, when it comes to dodging hundreds upon hundreds of eastern sports who are fight-bound and who want to stay in Sait Lake on the way "to" and dodge well enough.

Estimates vary as to how many outof-towners will scramble over each other in an effort to register at local hotels, but there will be a-plenty. Nevada hasn't the hotel accommodations by a good ways. Reno will be lucky if she even takes care of part of the western contingent, to say nothing of the vast hordes of fight lovers from the effete east.

But there will be hundreds upon hundreds, anyway, and Salt Lake hotels will be taxed to their fullest capacity. The rush will be on by July and will last until special trains which the various railroads have yet to arrange for shall take them to the scene of the white-black battle July 4. And coming back there will be the same bundle of folks. Whether they will have more money or less money to spend on the return trip will depend on how the tussle went and whether they won or lost on their Prominent Dignitaries of Mormon Church Attend the Burial Services of Alonzo E. Hyde.

The funeral of Alonzo E. Hyde, who was found dead in his home at 322 Tenth avenue Saturday morning, was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the Seventeenth ward chapel. In attendance were prominent men and women of the Mormon church. President Joseph F. Smith, the principal speaker, delivered the funeral sermon, selecting "The Resurrection" as his theme.

John Henry Smith, counsellor to President Smith, was also a speaker. He touched upon the life of Mr. Hyde as he had known him, pointing out his loyalty and devotion to the church and his character as a citizen. Bishop George Romney of the Twentleth ward also touched upon the life of Mr. Hyde, in a eulogy.

Members of the family were in bed when smoke began to fill the rooms. Before the flames had left the kitchen the inmates were dressed and were removing furniture. The fight against the flames lasted nearly an hour, when it was found nec-essary to flood the rear of the build-ing with water. Loss $599.

IN TRIBUNE'S BLUFF.

Public markets, retail liquor licenses, race track regulation and whether litenses shall be granted saloons run-ning in connection with gambling houses are likely to be headliners at tonight's meeting of the city council. There may also be a resurrection of Fernstrom investigation in the preseniation of the committee report signed by only two members of the comittee. By way of adding a little more of the galety of the session it is pos-ble, though not at all probable, that ommunication will be received from Sait Lake Tribune setting forth the names of the councilmen who have been accused by that paper of accepting pay from the race track operators and gamblers of the city.

This matter will not be brought before the attention of the council tonight unless such a communication is re-ceived, inasmuch as the official notificeived, inasmuch as the official notifi-cation of the action of the council was not sent to the Tribune until Wednes-day afternoon, thus giving that paper an opportunity of delaying the call of its biuff for another week. The resolu-tion as presented by Councilman John Holley and passed by a vote of 14 to 1, devands that the demands that the party organ either present the names of the two councilmen or present an apology within five days and it further provides that in the event this demand is not complied with the president of the council name a special committee to investigate the

In connection with about 130 applications for renewal of liquor licenses. Councilman J. W. Inasmuch as there is more than a bare possibility that a certain saloon conducted sibility that a certain saloon conducted by a member of the city council might be affected by this resolution, Council-man M. PREVENT DISASTERS

Governor Spry Will Urge State Solons to Safeguard Men Who Work in Mines.

Utah's latest mine disaster, in which seventeen persons were killed by an explosion at the Portland cement works at Devil's Slide, has brought about a enewed call for legislation for the protection of human life, and this disaster will be used as an argument before the next legislature to get a bill through that will cover such cases. At the present time, Governor William Spry and, for that matter, no other state officer, has any legal right to call for an investigation of the Devil's Slide accident, and there is no adequate way either to fix the responsibility or to provide against the recurrence of such accidents.

Governor Spry said yesterday that at the next legislature he would urge the passage of a law which would provide for the proper state inspection of the metalliferous mines of the state. This he said, could be provided by the ap-pointment of a deputy to serve under the coal mine inspector, or it could be made a separate department. Previous attempts to procure legislation on the subject have met the apposition of a powerful lobby controlled by the mine owners, and only failure has resulted.
